

RED LIGHT, GREEN LIGHT

This game is most fun with lots of people and is easy to learn at any age.

Step 1: Decide who will be the “traffic signal” that will call out directions.

Step 2: All players line up with the “traffic signal” standing in front, about 20 feet away, with back turned to the line of players.

Step 3: The “traffic signal” will yell, “Red light, green light, 1, 2, 3!” as quickly or as slowly as they like, while the other players quickly move toward the person who is calling directions.

Step 4: The “traffic signal” then quickly turns around, causing everyone to freeze. If they turn and spot a player still moving, that player is sent back to the starting line.

Step 5: The first person to reach the “traffic signal” becomes “it” for the next round, and so on.
